Welcome to the new Skipton Market website. Yes it's finally up and running, though probably truer to say still learning how to walk! Give us two months and then come back and look - either at the web site or at Skipton and its market itself.

The initial intention will be to give you as a visitor a quick guide to the information you'll need to make your day a little easier to plan, and hopefully a little more enjoyable in the process.

For example the Market days and opening times, parking facilities, information on the variety of market stalls and their products and points of interest around the market to complement your days shopping.

We think Skipton and it's surrounding area has a unique package to offer you for your perfect day out in a traditional and historic market town on the edge of the beautiful Yorkshire Dales. Rather than just another trip down to the functional but dull old supermarket or shopping centre.

We hope you feel the same after your visit.
